

THURSDAY, JANUARY 21, 3 A.M.

The JOURNAL in NEW ALBANY.—Mr. W. W. Riddle delivers the Journal to subscribers in New Albany. Orders at the newsstand of Jones & Hanna, Pearl street, will be promptly attended to.

NOTICES TO DISTRIBUTORS.—The distributors in the different Wards are requested to bind and bring to this city yesterday. It seems that the Doctor had entered into correspondence with his friends in Dixie, and one of the letters was intercepted and forwarded to the military authorities in this place. He is confined in the Military Prison.

PATRICK J. RYAN, the man who was arrested on Tuesday for assuming the duties of detective, and arresting a veteran soldier, was yesterday sent to the Military Prison with a ball and chain to his leg.

Forty-three deserters arrived from Washington, and will be forwarded to Nashville. One hundred and eighty-nine recruits were received from Columbus, and twelve from St. Louis.

Fifty-seven convalescents, from different points, reported for duty yesterday.

The 12th Connecticut, 75th Pennsylvania, and 86th New York regiments were paid off in our city yesterday, and left for their homes with bright and happy hearts, their war-worn trowsers proudly attesting their gallantry. They have all re-enlisted.

The gallant 17th Ohio arrived yesterday, and we understand, will be paid off here before leaving for home. They have done excellent service.

One hundred mechanics, for military railroads, arrived yesterday, en route to their field of operations at the front.

Three hundred soldiers were received yesterday, and four hundred and fifty transferred to the field.

A soldier was arrested yesterday for acting as detective, and, after a hearing before the Provost Marshal, was sentenced to ten days' hard labor with ball and chain.

Eight deserters were sent to Nashville yesterday, and five to Cairo.

John Curtis was robbed of $250 at the Planter's Hotel, on Tuesday night, by a man named Dossell.

Major E. B. Smith, reported to be of Morgan's command, was arrested in the city yesterday, took the Jeffersonville train, and came to this city. They changed their clothing and started driving westward, and, as above stated, took boardings with Mrs. Lightfoot, telling her that they were from Shreveport.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the General Council will take place at the usual hour this evening.

A joint resolution which, under the rules, lies over one day, was offered in the Legislature yesterday postponing the election of a United States Senator indefinitely. The election was set for to-day, and the resolution will be considered.

Mrs. Lightfoot and three of her daughters were arrested and brought before the Provost Marshal, but were afterwards permitted to return to their home, and a guard stationed at their house. Mrs. Stewart, who lives on Third street, was suspected of having concealed the uniforms of the officers, and her house was searched, but nothing was discovered. It seems, however, that the lady acknowledged that she was a rebel, and expressed herself in a very unbecoming manner, which led the military authorities to place her under guard.

The prisoners were under charge of Capt. Deeney, and numbered fifty-six. They left this place on the 15th inst., and the Captain says that the escape of the eight prisoners was not discovered until they were about to leave Seymour, and that they got away by lying on the floor and covering themselves up with their blankets, after which they crawled through the hole in the bottom of the car. The guard denies that he fell asleep, and had no knowledge of their having got away until he lifted the blanket to awaken them to the train for Cincinnati, when he discovered nothing but the hole left.

When they arrived at Columbus, the Captain left the prisoners in the cars, and was absent about an hour to get ambulances. When he returned and took the prisoners out, he discovered that four of them had made their escape. He thinks they jumped through the window of the water-closet, but is not certain that they did not get away between Cincinnati and Columbus. The Captain had only twelve guards with him, and says that they were not sufficient to guard fifty-six prisoners, and the three men who were arrested here confirm the Captain's belief.

The two rebel officers will be examined before the Provost Marshal this morning, together with Mrs. Lightfoot and Mrs. Stewart.

THE FOURTH AND SIXTH KENTUCKY CAVALRY.—The 4th and 6th Kentucky cavalry, part of Watkins' Kentucky brigade, arrived yesterday from Rossville, Georgia, having re-enlisted as veterans. The 4th, though decimated by disease and frequent skirmishes and fights, numbers about 300 war-worn veterans. The 6th, a regiment notorious for its brilliant dashes, its splendid drill and efficiency, is the largest veteran regiment that has yet been mustered, numbering, as we understand, about 550 men. The 6th Kentucky, belonging to the same brigade, have also commenced the noble work, and may be expected soon. It certainly behooves the people of Kentucky to welcome with honors, so richly merited, these gallant heroes, who are the first of the State to respond to the call for veterans. No body of men, in the Army of the Cumberland or elsewhere, have won more golden opinions from superiors for meritorious services. And now that they have reaffirmed that unfaltering loyalty, the noble characteristic of Kentucky's sons, it certainly becomes us as citizens to show by every possible demonstration, that, in their masterly efforts to restore our government to its original status, they have our best wishes, our earnest hopes, and our heartfelt prayers.

We learn that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THE FOURTH AND SIXTH KENTUCKY CAVALRY.—The 4th and 6th Kentucky cavalry, part of Watkins' Kentucky brigade, arrived yesterday from Rossville, Georgia, having re-enlisted as veterans. The 4th, though decimated by disease and frequent skirmishes and fights, numbers about 300 war-worn veterans. The 6th, a regiment notorious for its brilliant dashes, its splendid drill and efficiency, is the largest veteran regiment that has yet been mustered, numbering, as we understand, about 550 men. The 6th Kentucky, belonging to the same brigade, have also commenced the noble work, and may be expected soon. It certainly behooves the people of Kentucky to welcome with honors, so richly merited, these gallant heroes, who are the first of the State to respond to the call for veterans. No body of men, in the Army of the Cumberland or elsewhere, have won more golden opinions from superiors for meritorious services. And now that they have reaffirmed that unfaltering loyalty, the noble characteristic of Kentucky's sons, it certainly becomes us as citizens to show by every possible demonstration, that, in their masterly efforts to restore our government to its original status, they have our best wishes, our earnest hopes, and our heartfelt prayers.

We take occasion to caution the young ladies of Kentucky, although the officers of the 4th and 6th are veteran warriors, that hero is scarcely one of them married. We mean by cautioning Kentucky's fair daughters to imply that they believe them to be reward these gallant and meritorious officers with far more acceptable and richer honors than barbs, bairns, showy demonstrations.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

THEATRE.—The audience last evening, though large, was by no means commensurate with the merits of the charming lady whose name was the leading feature of the bill. Miss Hayes is one of the most agreeable actresses of the day. Her experience in the profession shows she has had to learn the art of acting, as well as the charm of her exterior.

W. W. RIDDLE.—We are pleased to see that Col. Watkins, who is now in the city, will rendezvous his brigade at Lexington, at the expiration of the furloughs now being given to the men under the directions of Majors Welling and Fuller, commanding the 4th and 6th regiments.

